IF YOU KNOW

All about an article you can safely buy it ANYWHERE.

If you are contemplating purchasing diamonds, for example you can protect yourself from misrepresentation by your knowledge, but suppose you are not. Suppose you are just an ordinary woman with no pretensions to being an expert. In such a case it is only a matter of common prudence to treat an establishment of the whose name itself is a guarantee of quality. This reasoning applies with particular force to

SILKS.

How many ladies would claim to be judges of silks, for instance. Very few. Then is it not of some value to a purchaser that she buy her silks at an establishment where none but goods of a sufficient guarantee of quality.

IT SEEMS PLAIN

That a house which has been established for years, proving the success and advantages of deep mining, was sold but night for $800,000 to Henry P. Love, of Winnipeg, and Percy A. Hamilton, of Chicago, by the owners, Messrs. Parker and Williams.

DILLON'S ADVICE.

Irish Farmers Must Ignore the Land Ownership Act.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—John Dillon's advice to the Irish farmers to ignore the legislation enacted by parliament for the purpose of establishing peasant proprietors, has caused a decided sensation among English liberals. The Dillon advice opening Dillon's advice, by claiming that the aim of the land purchase act is a mere show of land, and that the land purchase act is a mere show of land, and that the land purchase act is a mere show of land, and that

The Fort Wayne Rifle-walk prize-winners, Wm. Pennel of our soldier boys. They are the best and hand-some company in the state.

The Butler Review suggests the name of Judge McClellan of Auburn, in connection with the democratic nomination for governor of Indiana.

The residents of Lakeside want an electric light at the Columbia street bridge, and one ought to be placed at that point, as on dark nights it is dangerous to cross the bridge.

The Mahoning railroad seems to be dead. We haven't heard, for a long time, anything about its completion to the city. Guess they will never get the $500,000 that Fort Wayne voted them.

The Kendallville News says: "The candidacy of P. S. Dilworth for congress is again announced by some of our exchanges. He proposes to make the race, if at all, upon the tariff question."

SECRETARY BLAINE is improving in health pretty rapidly when he is able to be interviewed by a Boston newspaper reporter, as he was yesterday. Mr Blaine will be all right when the next republican national convention is held.

POLITICS are ringing in every city, town, village and school district in Ohio. The fight between Campbell and McKinley is a warm and close one. The idea of November will decide the question, so interesting the nation over, "Who will win?"

The long winter nights are coming on rapidly and everybody will want a paper to read then. THE SENTINEL gives all the local and telegraph news, fresh and presented in an attractive and readable manner. It would be glad to be a visitor at your home.

JOHN ALLEN C. TRUMAN will probably not long survive his beloved wife. For several years and up to the beginning of her last illness she was a faithful nurse to him. She looked after him as carefully as a nurse watches her child. He is confined to his room nearly all the time and is very weak and feeble.

THE Y. M. C. A. literary society will reorganize tonight for the winter month. The society had some very interesting and profitable meetings last winter, and it is to be hoped that they will again be placed on a permanent footing with large membership. Such organizations are productive of great good to the young men and young ladies of our city.

THE TRUSTEES will be completed in the early spring and then the earth orders will be happy. The waterworks trustees, under whose care necessarily rest the water works system, now begin to satisfactorily condemnd, and if they do, Mr Wolfe will, in company with City Civil Engineer Randall, be the purpose of looking the situation over and discuss ing upon the method by which the premises could be most suitably enlarged. It is decided that the foundation of the structure is practicable and that the issue is in the highest degree desirable.

THE popular law of Indiana is very generally condemned by the press of the state, and it will, no doubt, be repealed at the next session. The law reads as follows: "Whoever by word or sign or token, provokes or attempts to provoke another who has the power and ability to do so, to commit an assault upon any member of a battery, upon a party of mounted or unmounted militia, or upon any member thereof, shall be fined in any sum not exceeding twenty dollars." Under this provision it is not a crime to call an officer or soldier a coward or any other epithet, and as a consequence a man may provoke one to any manner of an assault upon him. Recently in the city of Indianapolis a man was fined for making a face at another in jest. He protested that he did not intend to provoke the man who arrested him.

The New York Gentlemen Beaten in Mere Assin.

President Harrison's renomination was talked in Gotham on April 7 last. Four gentlemen who had a fair chance of being nominated at the national convention of the world in Central Music Hall, on the Little square, New York, all received bouquets of American roses for their honors. When Harrison, the last in little one, popped the cream, Lincoln's birthday.

INDUSTRIAL NEWS.

The New Mississippi River Bridge at Memphis—Local and Personal News.

President Nettleton and a number of northern capitalists, who are interested in the building of the big bridge over the Mississippi near Memphis, were in that city last week examining the work so far as it has progressed, and which it is expected to complete by April, 1892. This, it is claimed, will be the best railroad bridge in this country. The total length of the structure is 8,000 feet, and it will rest on eight stone piers. The heights of the piers from the cutting edge of the caisson to the coping are from 117 to 197 feet. The foundations were put in by use of compressed air, the masonry being Bedford limestone and Georgia granite. The deepest foundation is 131 feet below high water. The central span of the superstructure rests on piers two and three, and is next to the longest span in the world—its length being 621 feet. From each end of the span projects a cantilever arm 169 feet long. The anchorage span is 325 feet long, and from it projects a cantilever arm 162 feet long. The two intermediate spans are 451 feet in length and will be suspended from the cantilever arms. At the west end of the bridge is a deck span 335 feet in length.

The trusses seventy-eight feet high and thirty feet wide. The height from the high water is seventy-five feet and 110 feet above low water. The pine used in the bridge are probably the largest ever used, being fourteen inches by four feet seven inches. The bridge is constructed of steel to carry 1000 pounds of moving load per lineal foot. The single track to be laid over it will consist of steel rails weighing eighty pounds to the yard.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers have one of the most beautiful suite of rooms in Northern Indiana. They recently moved into No. 136 Calhoun street, where they have furnished the entire third floor in elegant style. The furniture is antique oak, built in the latest pattern.

The Indianapolis Journal has the following bit of remarkable news: "The freight crews on the Fort Wayne road are dissatisfied with the long runs between Pittsburg and Crestline, Ohio. A petition is to be presented to the officials next week, asking that the runs be shortened, and if the request is refused the men say they will strike."

Mike Motes, a Wabash freight brakeman, met with a severe accident at Attica Wednesday morning. While coupling cars his right hand was caught between the drawbars, and the three fingers he had on that hand were smashed and broken. The other finger was lost in a similar accident last spring. Dr. Cole, of Attica, dressed the wound and the injured man was then taken to the hospital at Peru. He home at Marion, Ind.

During the past quarter the north western branch of the Pennsylvania Voluntary Relief association, including in the four railroads the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago road, did not have a single death by accident. The entire branch however, had five fatal accidents.

The next objective point is the city of Fort Wayne, which will be reached next spring."

How a "Sandwich Man" Died.

As a touching instance of the sufferings of the poor, and the small sum on which life can be supported when the wages admit of nothing more luxurious, I make no apology for giving the died about of a "sandwich man." It was published in the record of the London City mission. He only earned seven shillings a week, and, acting on Mr. Mlenwber's excellent advice and keep leg well within his income, spent 6s 10d. His week's food cost 2s 1 1-2d; six days' lodging, 2s; soap, 1 1-2d; washing, 4d; medicine, 2d; shaving, 1d, and a pair of boots or some other article of clothing, 2s. His daily food allowance of 4 1-4d was thus distributed: Dinner, 1d; supper and breakfast, bread, 1 1-4d; butter, 1d; tea and sugar, 1d. Soon after the production of this curious balance sheet he died in Guy's hospital. He once earned ten pounds a week. National Review.

Keep a Cat.

The best way of ridding a house of rats is to fill all the holes that can be found with pounded glass and seed them with plaster of paris and then if you wish. Then thoroughly clean the premises and see that there are no garbage pails left about to attract rats, and secure the services of a good cat. Treat her kindly, confine her as much as possible to the basement of the house, so she will keep those intruders away, and there need be no trouble. In a large hotel or boarding house the amount of refuse food about draws rats, but there is no excuse for their presence in a small house if there is a good cat around.—New York Tribune.

The Methodist Church, South.

The leading topics under discussion at the great Methodist conference in Washington are such as that illustrate the gathering congeries, viz: "Ecumenical." That is, the universal church, the Ecumenical Methodist church, the really catholic or universal church. This topic and the claims of Methodism to be considered a truly universal church are treated by the most powerful minds in the conference, and it goes without saying that their papers and the discussions they create will be of intense interest.

Akin to this, and indeed a part of it, is the great question of Christian unity, and of course another effort is on foot to hasten the fraternization of all the Methodist bodies of the United States and Canada. The greatest division, as everybody knows, was that of 1845, for in May of that year was organized at Louisville the body now known as the Methodist Church, South. It takes a smile or sigh, according to the reader's temperament, to recall that peculiar time, but now all can smile at the confident predictions of rash editors that the Methodist church was "split in a dying body." The Methodist Church, South, now includes about 1,500,000 members, and its 1890 general conference at St. Louis was on occasion when the most extraordinary ability was displayed.

Some Funny Answers.

For originality, not to say humor, commend us to the answers in examination papers. Here are two or three which an English bishop vouches for. A child was asked to give some account of Oliver Cromwell, and volunteered the information that the Protector "was very unhappy and died of assassination. On his death-bed he cried, 'If I had served my God as I served my king I should not thus be forsaken in my old age!' Another, evidently with temperance proclivities, defined spirits as "malady upon spirits." One smart youth who was asked by an examiner "Could your father walk around the world?" was equal to the occasion. "No, sir," said he. "Why not?" "Because he's dead."—New York Tribune.

Her Great Loss.

"Could you love me, darling?" he whispered with a tender, pleading look in his eyes, "if I had only one coat to my back?" "I could," she replied softly, as she pressed his hand, adoring. "Dick, dear, I'd love you just as much if you had only one shirt to your back!"—Clothier and Furnisher.

One Exception.

"It is too bad that the bristles turn back so frequently when this do not last as long as the back," said the visitor to Johnny's mother.

"They will," put in Johnny, cheerfully. "Ma uses the back of that brush a good deal."—Harper's Bazar.

A Pleasant Surprise.

Bride (to sister)—I should like to know my intended a little surprise before our marriage. What would you advise?

Female Friend—Hand you out like with your certificate of birth.—Hagerstown Mail.

A Great Want.

Customer (interrupting the barber's remarks)—Here's a great want in that partner!

Barber—No, sir. Why?

"I wish you had. I'd like him to shave me."—Harper's Bazar.

A Limited Experience.

A writer in The National Stockman says that the spread of bees is generally overestimated. He evidently never tried to get away from one.—Chicago Globe.

Autumnal.

Varicolored sofers now are
Decorating wood and field,
Pastures of the browning corn are
Dotted with the coldness yield;
Lush and fragrant now the grapes are,
Thistle down the meadow sprays,
Complacent red roasted ears are
Nearing resurrection days.

In the evening the maple leaves are
Fired with periodic flame,
Here and there the walnut fishers are
Laughing at the farmer's claim
In the result in the grates are
Bright with that which warmth imparts,
On the stump the outdoors are
Airing their lazy neighbors.

Meadland the garden plants are,
Frosts are hastening their fate,
Every where the cabin "pants" are
Stuffing rubber on of date,
Vernal sofers "returned with thanks" are
As they oft have been before,
And again the football remains are
Ripe for one another's gore.

Doubtful Morals.

The editor of a college paper says that a famous college president, a clergyman, was addressing the students in the chapel at the beginning of two college years.

"It is," he said in conclusion, "a matter of congratulation to all the friends of the college that this year opens with the largest freshman class in its history."

And then, without any pause, he turned to the lesson for the day, the third Psalm, and began to read in a voice of thunder:

"Lord, how are they increased that trouble me!"—Youth's Companion.

"A woman best understands a woman's ills."

In what recognition is a woman entitled whose sole ambition in life was to do good to others, and the fruit of whose labors has proved a blessing to the civilized world?"

"ONE BOTTLE BROUGHT ME OUT OF BED."

DEAR MADAM: BALTIMORE, Md., 31 Feb.

Having seen your advertisement in Tuesday's paper, I was so decided to send for your book and Vegetable Compound. Health and Happiness, not well and for 20 cent stamps. I have used your vegetable compound, and believed in it. I believe it to be the best medicine ever used. I was positively now bedridden for a month of bed, and three months more, that I could do the housework. May you be as successful in the future as you have been in the past, for everybody gives praise to your medicine. Yours truly,

TO ELEVATE THE MONKEYS.

A Scheme for Producing an Aristocracy of Intellect Among Monkeys.

A man of large means, who resides in Washington, based the idea that freedom, literally, is the foundation of every original project. The idea was that no satisfactory opportunity has ever been afforded for the development of the intellect of the brute. Intelligences, like bodily qualities, are supposed to improve and through heredity accumulate. Who knows what he thought about the evolution of the dog or the world by artificial selection. The idea is not perhaps that monkeys or apes shall be taken as pupils for experiment, simply because man understands better animals better than he does others.

Let fifty of them, half males and half females, be placed in a pen back suitably provided with separate apartments for the sexes. Then have them bred purely pure, so shall be directed by those who superintend. Some of them will develop more than others, to complement their species. For example, certain in backbone will exhibit a superior moral tendency of the mammals addressed to honor will show a greater deference in the handling of objects. Those which appear superior are to be separated from the colony, their places being filled by fresh recruits. When a male and a female are found who exhibit the same sort of aptitude in any direction they are to be mated. This process, carried on for generations would necessarily result in the development of superior characters until finally, after the lapse of twenty-five years perhaps, there would almost certainly be an ape or monkey as bright in the trade of reason than any known up to the present time.

Three patriotic citizens of the longest nose have already established a race of and even mechanical capacity sufficient to give ground for great hopes of possible development in point of intellect. Chimpanzees have been taught to bring things to the table, and the big Langur baboon of India is commonly used in that country today as a servant for working the punkah fans, with which flies are kept away from dinner tables. Explorer Stanley has given an account of apes which carry torches at night.

This is believed by scientists to be an absurdity, because all the anthropoid and similar tribes are too afraid of fire to render such a thing possible. It is a fact well known that gorillas, while they will gather about undertaken camp fire for the sake of warmth, will never think of keeping the embers alight by adding fuel. Nevertheless, every book on natural history relates instances illustrative of these creatures' drinking powers, and there is no question that it could be greatly improved by the process of judicious breeding. Even a pig can be taught to count up to ten.—Washington Evening Star.

How the Treasury is Guarded.

The Treasury watch is composed of seventy veteran soldiers, who are cut into three squads, dividing every twenty-four hours into three equal watches of eight hours each. The men wear no uniform, and would not impress the casual visitor to the secretary during the hours when the public is admitted. They go in groups during the day, but at night carry a large 12 caliber six chambered revolver, which is too large to be concealed in a pocket and must be carried in the hands all the time. Every one who passes the treasury at night may see pacing to and fro in the lofty area between the granite pillars and the wall of the building sentinel figures.

A person cannot approach within a hundred feet of the building without seeing a guard. Such a watchman, silent and martial in bearing, guards each of the four entrances to the treasury. The guards who traverse the corridors at stated intervals touch electric buttons to announce their presence in certain parts of the building. All this system of interior watchfulness was the work of Secretary Folger, who during his term in office lived in constant dread of an attack on the treasury.—Indianapolis Journal.
